New business models promote a shift in our customs. Instead of a linear usage of products, these business models endorse a circular approach where resources are used more efficiently and to their full capabilities through sharing, upcycling and recycling. These ideas, however open up new opportunities for investments into a more sustainable approach to design, production, usage and disposal of products. Therefore, we offer a unique insurance solution that protects investments into first-of-a-kind or early-stage commercial green technology installations.
