Product summary

A commercial product which offers cover for hardware, data and increased cost of working. The product is designed to offer protection for computer systems and data which are important to a customer's business - cover can range from damage or loss of a laptop to a large scale data loss. The product provides cover for:

- Hardware - loss, damage, theft, breakdown and corruption of hardware (including portables and electronic office equipment);
- Reinstatement of data - reconfiguration and data restoration costs following damage to hardware or failure of electricity supply or telecommunications network (owned and operated by the customer);
- Increased cost of working – increased cost in minimising or preventing interruption to computer systems;
- Virus, hacking and denial of service attack – damage to hardware, the cost of reinstating data and increased costs of working resulting from virus, hacking or denial of service attack.;
- All sections – costs incurred to remove viruses and get specialist advice to prevent viruses or hacking following an incident.

All sections of cover are available to the customer however in order to have the cover provided by section 2 (Reinstatement of data), section 3 (Increased costs of working) or section 4 (Virus, hacking and denial of service attack), the customer must have first selected cover under section 1 (Hardware). The policy offers flexibility so that different levels of cover can be selected within all the sections.

HSB Computer Insurance provides our customers with a competitive and more specialist market option than coverage available in some commercial property packaged products.
